On Wednesday the employees at the Burlington postoffice handled between 5,000 and 6,000 parcel post packages. Fifty-seven men are working in the office during the holiday season.

James F. Whalen of Burlington, one of the trustees who financed the Davis machine shops which were engaged on a year order, has been appointed to succeed Dr. Charles J. Russell, who resigns as receiver.

The mountain children from around Rutland will have their annual dinner and tree in Rutland as usual this year. Wednesday, December 29, has been set aside for the "big doing," which will be held in the dining hall at the Shrine theatre.

The original painting of a sunset on Lake Champlain by Mrs. Helen Howard Cooper, of Burlington, which was recently awarded a prize when hung in a Buffalo, N. Y., art gallery, has been purchased for a private art gallery in San Francisco. The picture is reported to have sold for $5,000.

In compiling records Health Officer Henry Tucker, of Brattleboro, has found the interesting fact that there were more deaths in that town from cancer for the year ending December 1, than were caused by tuberculosis. Ten deaths in town were reported due to cancer and only six were caused by the great white plague.

Mr. and Mrs. David Offensend celebrated their golden wedding at their home in West Haven Monday afternoon and evening, Dec. 20. Norwich Was a Pioneer.

Norwich university was not only the pioneer in the United States in establishing courses in engineering and agriculture, but was the first and only educational institution to adopt a course in citizenship embracing instruction in military science. Norwich university was founded in 1819. A prospectus was printed in various papers of the country in 1819 and 1820. The first catalogue published contains the following provision for a course in citizenship. The wonderful foresight of Captain Alden Partridge, the founder of this historic institution, is displayed in the arrangement and scope of this course, and practically all of it could be adopted in toto at the present time, and would constitute a most excellent curriculum. We quote from the first catalogue as follows, under the head of "Military Lectures":

"For the accommodation of gentlemen, (particularly of those holding commissions in the volunteer corps and militia) who may not wish to go through with a regular course of military studies and instruction and also for the purpose of diffusing military science more generally, Captain Partridge will deliver annually at the before mentioned seminary, three courses of public lectures; the first course to commence on the second Monday in July, and the third course on the first Monday in October annually. These lectures will embrace the following branches of military science and instruction, viz.:

"1st. Permanent and field fortification, the construction of field works generally, and also marine batteries.

"2d. The attack and defense of fortified places.

"3d. The use of artillery, with a general exposition of the principles of gunnery.

"4th. Military tactics.

"5th. Garrison and field service of troops, embracing particularly their police and rules for turning out, mounting and relieving guards and sentinels, and also for guard duty, likewise camp training.

"6th. General rules for the attack and defense of a province or country embracing the exposition of the principles of base lines of operation.

"7th. Rules for the inspection and review of troops.

"8th. A summary of ancient fortifications and also of the ancient modes of attacking and defending fortified places.

"9th. A summary of the ancient tactics, particularly those of the Greeks and Romans.

"10th. A description of some of the most celebrated battles and sieges, both of ancient and modern times, for the purpose of practically illustrating the principles explained in the lectures. In order to render the lectures on fortification perfectly intelligible, plans will be prepared, on which the several parts of a work will be clearly and distinctly exhibited.

"Particular attention will be given to a full explanation of all the technical terms used in fortification, as well as in the other departments of military science. A full course will comprise about 20 lectures, five to be delivered each week until the course is finished. The terms for attending a course will be ten dollars. Gentlemen subscribing for two courses will be allowed over after to attend gratis. All those attending the lectures will be entitled during the time of such attendance, to practical military instruction and also to the privilege of the reading-room, without any additional charge."
